

Attention! Before using the player values.

There were an excessive number of injuries to key NFL players last year. These injuries (combined with bye weeks) meant that some students were often not able to field a complete starting lineup on any particular week. This was not a major problem, but a couple of teachers told me that it occurred. If all went well with your students last year, then you can stay with the original $40 million salary cap and number of players selected that are in the books. However, if you want to eliminate this potential problem, then you can simply give students more money to draft more players. In other words, the new salary cap will be $55 million (instead of $40 million) and students will draft 18 players (instead of 13). Consequently, the new salary cap and number of players students will select at each position are as follows:

Position	Number Selected with $40,000,000 Cap	Number Selected with $55,000,000 Cap
QB	2	3
RB	3	5
WR	4	6
K	2	2
D	2	2

If you decide to go with the new $55 million cap, then students will need to make room for the increased number of players selected on their roster sheets.
